

Leather belt and brass buckle

Object Card

A leather belt with the “US” insignia buckle was standard issue for Union infantry soldiers. Unlike our belts today, Civil War soldiers wore their belts on the outside of their jackets. It was put on last and would secure the haversack and canteen from banging around on a march.

